Small Stick Serves as Weapon in Absence of Shotgun for Which Young Man Reaches While Robbers Are Pointed at His Head.

FIVE PATRONS OF BAR

LINED UP ALONG WALL

North St. Louis Bandits Descend on Corner Grocery and Saloon Just After Departure of a Crowd of Wedding Merry-makers.

Henry Grise of 3804 North Twenty-third street, a clerk at Albert Albrecht's saloon and grocery store, refused to be awed when a masked robber presented a revolver to his face in the dim light of the grocery store, and eventually put the robber and two companions, who had already lined up six men in barroom and robbed the cash register, to flight by his evident determination to get a weapon.

Grise had been left in charge of the saloon and store at the corner of Twenty-second and Mallinckrodt streets about 10 o'clock he went into the grocery department, fronting on Twenty-second street, to prepare a sandwich for one of the pinocchio players in the barroom.

While he was there the men, wearing large handkerchiefs to mask their faces below the eyes, came in through the rear entrance.

The men came in quietly, and the first seen of them by Gus Posthast of 2328 University avenue, Conrad Albrecht of 2306 Palm street, Richard Kurat of 3615 North Twenty-third street and William Ely of 304 North Twenty-second street, the card players and Casper Hollenbeck of 3613 North Twenty-second street was when three guns were leveled and the command "Hands up" was given.

The order was obeyed instantly, all but Albrecht dropping their cards.

Drinker Waved "Gesundheit." John Scher of 3812 North Twenty-third street, was standing at the bar drinking a glass of beer and he did not see the robbers until the card players had obeyed orders, and he held his glass aloft without waiting for orders.

One of the robbers, described as "a kid," in that he was not over 20 years of age, all being very slender, kept the party covered with a revolver, while one of the taller men went behind the bar and took $15 from the register. The third man tapped the pockets of the card-players and Beer, and finding some change in Posthast's pocket, took it, amounting to $2.50.

In spite of the owner's efforts to keep his pocket closed by bending over, the robber followed him closely, repeating his profane commands to put up his hands, while the other two men followed, asking what the joke was and offering it.

As he reached the desk, Grise reached quickly for the rifle, and the robber called to his companions to deal at the front of the store, where he knew a 10-shot rifle was kept.

SHOWERS PREDICTED TONIGHT

Uncertain Weather Conditions Prevail and Most Anything May Be Expected.

Choppy weather prevails throughout the West and Northwest and almost anything is likely to come St. Louisward. The most immediate thing in sight is an attack of showers. Uncertainty as to the most probable effect on St. Louis of the prevailing conditions in surrounding states delayed the issuance of the local forecast until 10 o'clock Thursday morning. It is as follows:

"Partly cloudy Thursday night and Friday. Cooler Friday. Variable winds, mostly southerly."

There was a drop in the temperature Thursday morning as compared to that of Wednesday morning. The lowest point, 38 degrees above zero, was reached at 4 o'clock. As the day advanced the mercury went up and at 10 o'clock had reached the 50 notch.

Unsettled conditions prevail in the West. Rain and snow are falling beyond the Rockies. It was snowing Thursday morning in Minnesota and South Dakota. Rains were general east of the river Wednesday, but fair skies are the rule today.

PAYNE DISMISSES MISS DREYER

She and Three Other Postoffice Clerks Charged With Conspiracy to Oust Baumhoff.

SUSPENDED BY POSTMASTER GOVERNMENT REVIEWS TRIAL

Civil Service Commissioner Cooley Explains the Investigation and Action in Dreyer Case.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Postmaster-General Payne today directed the dismissal of Anna Dreyer, Samuel Cooley, Birdie Knott, clerks in the St. Louis postoffice, for alleged conspiracy to secure the removal of Postmaster Baumhoff of that city. These clerks were suspended March 9 and 10, and their permanent separation from the service is now ordered as the result of the investigations of the charges made against Baumhoff.

Civil Service Commissioner Alfred W. Cooley this morning made for the Post-Dispatch the following statement of the investigation of the Anna Dreyer case:

"On Friday, Nov. 6, the commission requested Postmaster Baumhoff of St. Louis to state in writing his reason for the indefinite suspension of Anna Dreyer, a clerk in the St. Louis postoffice. Mr. Baumhoff has replied, stating that he suspended her acting under instructions from the postmaster-general."

The postmaster-general states that Miss Dreyer was suspended because she, with Atkins and Knott, conspired with certain political enemies of Mr. Baumhoff in the city of St. Louis to secure his removal from the public service."

At the request of the President, Mr. Foulke, then a civil service commissioner, last spring investigated this matter and drew the conclusion from the testimony taken by him that there had been a conspiracy on the part of Miss Dreyer and others to oust Baumhoff.

Acted on Strength of Foulke's Report.

"Miss Dreyer's suspension was due to this cause. The commission is, of course, without power to settle any personal dispute between Miss Dreyer and any other person whether in the public service or out of it. It was the postmaster-general, acting on the strength of the Foulke report, who ordered the suspension."

The post-Dispatch correspondent asked Commissioner Cooley for an extract of the Foulke report. It was pointed out that Miss Dreyer was dismissed on account of statements in that report of a conspiracy which were made by the people of St. Louis regarding the actions of the person in question. It could be only fair and just for all to have the utmost publicity.

It was explained that the Foulke report was not fair to Miss Dreyer to make an accusation against her on the strength of a "secret dossier." If Commissioner Cooley could form a judgment on the strength of certain statements, the public had a right to know the substance of the dossier. It was the same statement.

Cooley pointed out that the dossier of the postoffice department and others should not have a right to make statements which would cause a scandal in the public service of the United States to think badly of Miss Dreyer and condemn her for conspiracy and yet hide them in a secret document.

"Evidence Belongs to the President."

"Are there any statements made by friends of Miss Dreyer?" was asked of Mr. Cooley.

"One was made by a person who was involved in the conspiracy, but repented," said Mr. Cooley. "This person gave the whole of the conspiracy and the facts involved."

"Can the Post-Dispatch have the name of the person who made the confession, before the case is closed, and have what others said about it?"

"That is not for me to say," said Mr. Cooley. "Mr. Foulke might be willing, but the report hardly belongs to him. That belongs to the President of the United States, for whom Mr. Foulke made the investigation."

VERDICT SOON IN TRIPE FRAUD CASE

Defense Urges Insufficiency of Evidence Against Barrett, Dolan and Garrett

Assistant District Attorney Tells the Jury That Barbaglia Was Only a Tool in the Hands of Trio.

A verdict of guilty in the naturalization fraud cases of Thomas E. Barrett, John D. Dolan and Policeman Frank Garrett, if the highest penalty were imposed, would mean a penitentiary sentence of 50 years and an aggregate fine of $50,000 for each.

There are eight indictments. In eight indictments the case goes to the jury on count five, which charges the defendants with aiding and abetting in securing citizenship papers. In count nine of two indictments the charge is "obtaining certificates for purposes of registration."

The minimum penalty on each count is a penitentiary sentence of three years and a fine of $500.

The jury has the privilege of convicting or acquitting any one of the defendants, regardless of the conviction or acquittal of the other two.

The attorneys began their pleas to the jury in the United States District Court Thursday morning. After the examination of witnesses in rebuttal for the government.

The case will go to the jury Thursday afternoon.

The defense maintains that even if fraudulent papers of citizenship were given applicants there has not been enough evidence introduced to connect the three defendants with the fraud.

A complete general denial of the charges Government's Counsel Declares Trio Guilty.

The case against the former marshal of the St. Louis court of appeals, the chairman of the Democratic city committee and the policeman was reviewed in detail by Attorney General J. Edgar Hoover.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon Judge Chester Barbaglia, who was the defense attorney, began his case.

"Barbaglia was simply an underling in the whole matter. He was a young man, an ignorant man, only six years in the court of appeals, but he was a man of great courage and integrity."

STRIKE BREAKER FARLEY ON HAND IN CHICAGO

Inveterate foe of labor unions ready to plunge into the trouble between the street railway company and its employees.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—"Boss" Farley, the strike breaker and foe of labor organizations, is in Chicago, and it is said, was called here by the street railway company to assist it in moving cars in defiance of the strikers.

In all the strikes waged by street car employees for years past they have been confronted by "Boss" Farley and his army, and in Chicago the struggle between Farley and the leaders of the union will renew the contest that has been fought out, with varying issues, in many other cities.

President W. D. Mahon of the union, who has come to Chicago, has met Farley and has gone down in defeat before him. General Organizer Clarence O. Pratt also has had experiences with this man who has chosen the most dangerous of all vocations. What these two officers do not know of Farley can be supplied by local leaders in the different cities.

Farley took out the first car in the Cleveland strike.

Farley took out the first car in the St. Louis strike.

Farley and his men handled the cars in strikes in Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Providence, New Orleans, Bridgeport, in Waterbury, Conn., and in unnumbered other struggles.

Farley lives in the breath of battle. He carries two bullets received while on duty for street car companies and has many scars of minor hurts. Yet, while saying that he grew into the business naturally, he also admits that he likes it.

The first encounter between the boss and the leaders of the Amalgamated Association was in Cleveland.

At length the time came and the start was made.

Farley operated the car, and he had not completed the run when he was surrounded by union men and charged to their headquarters. He was known by reputation and the leaders of the union had made a great capture.

Farley was led into the room where the committee in charge of the strike held its sessions. There were mutterings of "kill him," and one of the leaders had a revolver on the table in easy reach. The "boss" moved without a change of expression. Then he reached into his pocket and produced a revolver of his own.

"If you will promise to get out of Cleveland in two hours you can have the money," Farley was told.

He agreed to the stipulation and swept the money into his pocket. Taking the Cleveland in the property of the strike, he moved out of the city.

One of Farley's bullets was received in Cleveland in the property of the strike. He never thinks of the money fitting clothing, but fixes his eyes on the man's face.

This feature of his was not, however, a deep, indifferent, distant light. As a rule, he was a man of a certain type, with a few sharp teeth, but it barely can be seen under the overhanging mustache.

Such attacks have been unusual, however, and the "boss" at times has seemed to bear a sort of charmed life. Where his men and the nonunion employees of the car companies have been dragged from their work and beaten, Farley has faced the same crowds without a hand being lifted to harm him. It is of record that he took a car through a howling mob in the Waterbury strike, drove the strikers away at the point of the pistol.

With broad shoulders and a stride in which much power and self-possession are revealed, an observer never thinks of the loosely fitting clothing, but fixes his eyes on the man's face.

This feature of his was not, however, a deep, indifferent, distant light. As a rule, he was a man of a certain type, with a few sharp teeth, but it barely can be seen under the overhanging mustache.

MOB AND RIOT USHER IN STRIKE AT CHICAGO

Scenes Like Those Enacted in St. Louis Follow the Stoppage of the City Street Railway System Which Took Place at 4 O'Clock This Morning.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—At 4 o'clock this morning the strike of the 3000 employees of the City Street Railway began. It is feared that there will be a repetition of the tragedies that occurred in the St. Louis strike, as conditions are similar.

The streets are filled with strikers and supporters and the first effort to run cars resulted in riots.

Something over 3000 men are directly involved, but they have the sympathy and support of all organized labor in the city.

The street car system affected is about equal to that of the St. Louis Transit Co. It has nearly 30 miles of track and controls all the surface lines on the South side of Chicago.

The demands of the union were for a wage increase of 5 per cent, recognition of the union and several other minor concessions. The union offered to arbitrate any point at issue.

This offer was rejected by General Manager McCulloch on behalf of the directors of the company. "Capt." McCulloch is well known in St. Louis, having been connected with the management of street car lines in that city for many years.

The first car Run Was Attacked.

Beginning at midnight the trainmen gradually took their cars to the seven barns of the company scattered throughout the system and left them there.

In the shops, barns and power houses the union workers laid down their tools and quit, declaring that they will remain idle until the company consents to arbitrate the issue that brought on the controversy.

Notwithstanding statements by officials of the company that no attempt would be made to run cars today except for postal service, a few passenger cars were started this morning early on various lines.

The result was trouble, the first instance reported being the intention and flight of a nonunion crew on the Cottage Grove avenue line. The cars were without passengers. That disturbance might be expected today was indicated by the wide distribution of a proclamation by Mayor Carter H. Harrison warning citizens to keep off the streets along the lines of the city railways.

With general orders to remain in reserve and take no part in the strike unless ordered and then only to protect property, details of police were sent to the various car barns.

The first car started was a mail car, leaving the barns at Thirty-ninth street and Cottage Grove avenue. It was not harmed during its entire trip. In all, 200 policemen were detailed to the different car barns.

One Man Hurt in First Onset.

Following the trip of the mail car efforts were made by the street car company to move passenger cars with nonunion crews. Four trains were started on the Cottage Grove avenue cable line, bound towards the business district. At Fortieth street an obstruction on the rails blocked the trains.

A crowd of strikers had assembled and shouts and jeers greeted the train crew as a shower of stones followed and car windows were demolished. One man, a nonunion conductor, is said to have been injured in the first clash.

A mail car following the first passenger train was also derailed near the scene of the blockade. Besides the police detailed for service at the several barns many more were quickly made available to respond to emergency calls.

A car on the Westworth avenue line proceeded north with little difficulty until Van Luren street was reached. There its progress was blocked by trucks and delivery wagons, which gathered by the scores, locked wheels and refused to move. Cars of the Union Traction Co. also helped to make this blockade complete, thousands of people being jammed in the street.

Dr. Freudenstein used the stomach pump with success on the baby, and little John will be as well as ever within a few days.

Mrs. Ziegler said the story of her grandson, who is the child of John Schenk and lives with her, while at play Thursday afternoon found a bottle containing one ounce of laudanum and drank the drug.

WEALTHY WOMAN TO KILL ALL HER LIVE STOCK TO PREVENT CRUELTY

Mrs. Murray's Sense of the Humane Is So Great She Will Not Harvest Crops Lest Her Beasts of Burden Suffer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW BRITAIN, N. J., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Evelyn W. Murray, reputed to have over $1,000,000, is the wealthiest woman in Somerset County.

She does not believe in eating meat and will not allow any of her stock to be sold, but it got into the hands of the butchers.

Of late she has been having all the calves born on the place chloroformed immediately after birth, so that they will not become weak.

Last week by her direction Dr. E. R. Yocum administered chloroform to all the cows and a bull about three years old by poison injection that brought them a quick death possible to them.

Two cows were put to death at the same time, and Mrs. Murray is preparing a system of killing all her live stock, including two fine carriage horses, an old horse and mule which have been for many years on the farm. She has given up driving and goes about the country in a large automobile.

Mrs. Murray is said to have other peculiar ideas regarding her farm. Crops are raised but never harvested, and the animals will not be worked, and wither away in the fields, while food supplies for the stock are purchased in large quantities.

MUNYON'S PAW-PAW

All, But It Does Cure
DYSPEPSIA

NERVOUSNESS
SLEEPLESSNESS

By Purifying the Blood. Paw-Paw
Cures Catarrh, Rheumatism,
Kidney and Liver Troubles.

I am in receipt of letters daily from people who have been cured of Rheumatism, Kidney Ailments, and Catarrh with Paw-Paw. This is most gratifying, and it shows that these cures are brought about because Paw-Paw purifies the blood and puts the nerves and blood into a vigorous condition; but I wish to emphasize the fact that while Paw-Paw will cure Catarrh, Rheumatism, and many other ailments by purifying the blood, I still wish it distinctly understood that I do not advertise this Paw-Paw for these ailments. Paw-Paw is advertised to cure Dyspepsia—to cure Nervousness—to cure Sleeplessness and to build up the general system.

I know that Paw-Paw will cure indigestion. I know it will strengthen the nerves. I know it will cure sleeplessness and the despondent hopeful.

I also know that when a person has Rheumatism they should take my Rheumatism Cure. It is almost an infallible remedy. It does not put the disease to sleep, only to break out again, but drives it from the system. I know it will cure Sciatica. I know it will cure Lumbago. I know it will cure sharp, shooting pains in any part of the body, where so much with this remedy I say to every sufferer of Rheumatism: Get a 2-cent vial of your druggist, and if you are not perfectly satisfied with the result bring your empty vial to me and I will refund your money.

I can say the same of my Kidney Cure. While the Paw-Paw is a most excellent remedy for the kidneys and the blood, yet if you have any kidney ailments, I most urgently advise you to take my Kidney Cure. I do not overstate the matter when I say that it has cured more kidney ailments in the last five years than all the other medicines that have been compounded. This is a sweeping assertion I know, but the facts are sweeping and much stronger than this statement.

Where a person is run down—where their nerves are weak, where their stomach is out of order—all sufferers of rheumatism or kidney ailments should take Paw-Paw with the Rheumatism and Kidney Cures—MUNYON.

Cast away all tonics, all medicines and all stimulants and let Munyon's Paw-Paw make you well. It will put you into the high altitude of hope and hold you there. It will give exhilaration without intoxication. Sold by all druggists. Large bottles, $1. Paw-Paw Laxative Pills, 50c a bottle.

GRAY HAIR SAVES A YOUNG MAN

James Hunt Was Charged With Terrorizing Seven Men in Saloon.

THE SALOONKEEPER TESTIFIED

Declared the Man Who Invaded His Place Had No Silvery Locks.

Hair as white as that of his father, who is over 60 years old, saved James Hunt of 627½ Black avenue from conviction in the Dayton Street Police Court Thursday morning on a charge that savored much of "red wild west," but even the gray hairs or his denial of ever owning or carrying a revolver did not save him from a $10 fine for carrying concealed weapons.

Hunt was charged with carrying concealed weapons and discharging firearms in the city limits.

Police of the North Market street station testified that they had arrested Hunt immediately after the shooting and taking from him a light pocket British building revolver, in which was found four empty and one loaded shell.

Saloonkeeper testified that James Hunt came into his saloon at 779 North Broadway Tuesday evening and ordered seven card players in the place to line up at the bar. After they had lined up he fired a shot at them, seemingly trying to shoot off their coat tails. While the seven were going out the back door, Hunt went out the front, leaving them alone.

E. D. Weisman, a waitman, was standing across the street when a man came from the saloon and fired three shots. Hunt in his own behalf denied that he was the man.

He was recalled, and after taking a long look at Hunt said the man who came into his saloon had no gray hair. To the last Hunt maintained that he could not account for the revolver in his pocket. The policemen testified as to his good reputation.

WOMEN BUILD A BONFIRE

Furniture Donated to Their Church by Gang of Robbers Given Up to the Flames.

For ten years a little village has been the headquarters of one of the best organized gangs of robbers of the country.

The resident members have taken a prominent place in church and society. Without pretending to piety they have nevertheless been liberal supporters of the little mission church in the village. They made gifts of church furniture to the church and could always be depended upon to do a great deal toward making up the arrears on the pastor's salary.

In the society of the village and countryside they cut a wide swath.

Although they were burglars they were regarded as very desirable members of the community.

Now fifteen of the members of the gang are in custody and the officers of the law are hot on the trail of the rest.

The village was shaken from center to circumference when the revelation came that there was consternation in the church. The furniture which the robbers had given to the church was found to be made of iron.

The story will be in the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

of pedestrians on their way to work massed in the street, adding to the confusion and hampering the police in their efforts to clear a way for the stranded cars.

Another cable train was derailed at Forty-seventh street on the Cottage Grove avenue line by a crowd of strike sympathizers. A horsehoe was wedged in the cable slot and brought the train to a standstill. The gripman was injured by the shock and was removed to a drug store. A physician called to attend him is said to have inquired if he had a union button. On receiving a negative reply, he said: "Take him to the barns. They will attend to him there," and refused to examine the gripman's injuries.

It soon became apparent that a determined effort was being made by the company to break the strike at the inception. The passenger cars on the Cottage Grove and Wentworth avenue lines came along quickly as soon as mail cars were safely out of sight. No policemen rode in the cars, which were almost invariably empty.

Patrons apparently preferred to walk or make long detours to railroad or elevated lines rather than risk injury. The first passenger car on the Wentworth avenue line carried two women. Sufferers from the women were put there by the street car company to test the attitude of the union toward passengers. This was the car which was promptly blackballed by teamsters.

Officials of the union, fearing interference with the operation of the United States mail service would result in the calling of troops from Fort Sheridan to protect the cars, instructed motormen on mail cars to report for duty as usual.

A schedule of wages was submitted with the second demand.

Commissioner Carlton Found Dead.
CARBONDALE, Ill., Nov. 13.—The body of Perry L. Carlton, U. S. commissioner of Southern Illinois, was found late yesterday afternoon three miles east of this city by a train crew on the Illinois Central. A shot hole was found through the lower part of the body and by its side a revolver and one empty chamber. Many believe that Mr. Carlton was murdered, although circumstances seem to indicate suicide.

HUSBAND ELUDES HIS TWO WIVES

First Mrs. Hausmann Gives Up Search and Spends Time Sight-Seeing.

VISITS WORLD'S FAIR SITE

Will Return to Philadelphia Friday Night, but Will Keep Up Watch for Erring Husband.

Mrs. Frederick Hausmann No. 2 was to accompany her on this tour, but at the last moment pleaded a pressure of household duties, and asked to be excused.

Mrs. Hausmann No. 1 says she will return to Philadelphia Friday evening, and does not expect that she will find her husband meantime. She spent all of Wednesday in a vain search for him and says she found only that he had not been seen at any of his accustomed haunts since Monday night.

The second Mrs. Hausmann accompanied the first Mrs. Hausmann on Wednesday afternoon's search.

The first Mrs. Hausmann says her first clue as to the whereabouts of Hausmann and the fact of his marriage to Miss Julia Mueller, came from Hausmann's sister in Wurtemberg, Germany, from which place both she and Hausmann came.

Mrs. Hausmann and her sister-in-law have been corresponding since the marriage in 1924, and the correspondence was not dropped when Hausmann deserted his wife and son and unborn daughter in Philadelphia a little more than a year later.

A few weeks ago, Hausmann's sister wrote to Mrs. Hausmann that her husband was in St. Louis and that he had married Miss Mueller.

Mrs. Hausmann immediately began the inquiry which resulted in her visit to St. Louis, her demand for $500 from Hausmann for the education of their son, her promise to keep the fact of her existence from the second Mrs. Hausmann, and Hausmann's precipitate retreat through the back door.

Mrs. Hausmann says she will keep a close watch upon Hausmann after her return to Philadelphia, and that she will try to take legal action against him as soon as she can find him.

Mrs. Hausmann No. 1 persists in her declaration that she does not want to see Hausmann again, except to serve a warrant upon him, and that as soon as possible she will ask for an annulment of the marriage ceremony which she thought made her Hausmann's wife.

DOCTOR'S CALL IS CUT SHORT

Female Hospital Authorities Object to Physician's Visit to Head Nurse and Arrest Follows.

Charges of disturbing the peace and resisting an officer were made against Dr. John Le Brecht of 128 South Grand avenue, as the result of a call he made on a nurse employed at the female hospital.

Assistant Superintendent Harrington and Watchman Thomas Greeley of the hospital objected to the presence of Dr. Le Brecht at the hospital and ordered him to leave.

Dr. Le Brecht is alleged to have departed at their orders. Patrolman Richard Durney happened on the scene and was asked to arrest the physician.

The case was continued in the City Hall Police Court Thursday morning until Nov. 15. The arrest occurred about 11 o'clock Wednesday night. Dr. Le Brecht stated Thursday that he had the permit required from those who visit the hospital.

Mrs. Bertha Keim, matron of the hospital, was discharged Thursday by order of Health Commissioner Simon.

STATE TO PAY FOR LOST HORSE

Animal Loaned to Col. John I. Martin Was Stolen From Exposition Camp.

The state of Missouri will pay for a beautiful chestnut riding horse which was lost or stolen while it was the rented property of Col. John I. Martin, inspector, while practicing for the National Guard of Missouri, during the World's Fair dedication ceremonies.

Col. Martin hopes exceedingly that the animal will be recovered. He desires to purchase it for it for military and parade purposes.

Wolfer & Co., Belleville, horse buyers and sellers, rented the horse to Col. Martin. Now they have filed a claim with the city attorney of Belleville for $10, at which they valued the animal. This claim will be presented to Inspector-General H. C. Clark of the state guard.

Col. Martin said Thursday that the bill should have been sent to him personally, and that he would have attached to it his "O. K." and forwarded it to Gen. Clark.

The colonel explains that the horse disappeared shortly after he had loaned it to a captain of the Second Regiment, encamped on the Exposition grounds. This captain had let it tied in front of camp. He returned five minutes later and the animal was gone with much of Col. Martin's shining military paraphernalia.

Private detectives and other methods have failed to restore the handsome animal to the colonel.

DREAMER SEES CITY'S FUTURE.

St. Louis is destined to become the hub of the universe and the largest city on earth within a few decades, according to Prof. C. M. Hancock of Chicago, who is speaking to interest the Missouri World's Fair commission in acquiring the world with the fact.

The Mississippi valley says the professor is the most "valued" of the world's most important men in the world. The professor is especially favorable. The professor desires to convince all people of this fact and to show the world that St. Louis is the center of the universe.

NIGHT HAWK FLIES AFTER THE SUMMER

Two-Masted Schooner From Northern Lakes Follows in Wake of Gates' Yacht.

The good schooner, Night Hawk, Capt. Philip Racine, from Racine, Wis., for Mobile, Ala., with a crew and passenger list of five, laden with fishing tackle, hunting implements and a locker full of good things, lies at the foot of Chouteau avenue waiting for a favorable wind.

The Night Hawk's captain, crew and passengers are chasing the fleeing summer, but doing it leisurely. They started from Racine on Oct. 8, just about the time that the first frost got on the pumpkins, and have been sailing across lakes and down rivers as the wind and their humor moved them. They have no schedule except to get South with the same speed that the cold weather covers the North, and so stay there until the summer reasserts itself. They are hunting and fishing as they go, and, with perfect independence of the coal trust, are enjoying life.

The schooner, which boasts two towering masts and a 500-foot spread of canvas, came down the Chicago canal and the Illinois river, following the same route as that taken by John W. Gates in his luxurious yacht, Roxana. But they are not traveling in the style, nor with the speed, that Mr. Gates enjoys. They will follow the Gates' craft for the full remaining length of the Mississippi, but where they Roxana headed west for Sabine Pass and the Gates winter palace at the head of Sabine Lake, the Night Hawk will head east for Mobile Bay and a winter before the historic southern city.

The Night Hawk is 43 feet long, has a 12 foot beam and 3-foot depth of hold, while its cabin is 13 feet long. With Capt. Racine are his father, Louis Racine and his brother, Henry Racine, and Ed Blah and William Guth.

Racetrack vs. Poolroom.

In three affidavits filed in the Circuit Court at Clayton, San Mount and L. J. Jones are charged with violating the breeders' law by the operations of a poolroom at Monks's Grove. Three violations are charged, the penalty on conviction in each of which would be a fine of $1000 or imprisonment for six months. Judge H. W. Bond, counsel for the Delmar racetrack authorities, directed the proceedings in court.

Angered Wife Makes Law Fly

Has Husband and Father-in-Law Fined and Asks Divorce in One Morning.

Thursday morning was a busy forenoon for Mrs. Anna Knerr of Bristol street, Belleville.

Immediately after breakfast she went to Justice Wangelin's court, where she gave testimony which convicted her husband, Martin Knerr, of assault and battery and cost him a fine of $50.

Then she testified against her father-in-law, John Knerr, whom she charged with disturbing the peace, and he was fined $50. Immediately thereafter, she went to a lawyer's office and had a petition for divorce and alimony, and another for an injunction against the disposal of property by her husband, both of which she filed in the circuit court before she went to lunch.

The trouble in the Knerr family came to a head when Knerr did not reach home as early as his wife expected him on the evening of payday. Mrs. Knerr began to fear that he had been robbed by footpads while coming home through the railroad yards to his home, and made inquiries among the neighbors. He upbraided her for making the inquiries, and when she talked back struck her and left the house. He went to the home of his father and asked the senior Knerr to return and order Mrs. Knerr away. The father did so, but Mrs. Knerr refused to go, and his insistence led to his arrest.

"COUNTRY" EGGS LONG L.A.D.

Mrs. Gunn Asks Police to Look for Man Who Sold Her Sixty Dozen.

Mrs. D. J. Gunn of 1418 North Grand avenue is looking for a man who sold eggs to her that aren't fresh. Mrs. Gunn appealed to the police for aid Thursday and will dispose of 60 dozen of the veteran spheroids at a bargain day figure.

The man called on Mrs. Gunn and said he was a country farmer with no end of busy hens. He had the 60 dozen eggs with him. He would sell them cheap. They were fresh as fresh can be, laid not more than 24 hours. Would she buy them for $12.80 a dozen? The man departed with a countryman's smile of satisfaction on his broad features. Mrs. Gunn describes him as being about 50 years old, stout and smooth shaven.

GULLER VERDICT STIRS BUNKER HILL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

Guller was defendant. Everybody, male and female, is urged to be present."

The call for the meeting is printed "per order of committee," which is said to be composed of leading citizens.

FOLK'S POWER IS QUESTIONED

Attorney Gernes Attacks Right to Issue Informations During Grand Jury Session.

The right of W. Scott Hancock, assistant circuit attorney, to affix his signature to informations while Circuit Attorney Folk is in the city, was attacked by Attorney John Gernes in the circuit court for criminal cases, Judge Daniel G. Taylor, presiding, Thursday morning.

Attorney Gernes also questioned the right of the circuit attorney or his assistants to issue informations during a session of the grand jury. The court ordered that the argument be reserved until Friday, when these two points will be passed on.

The decision will affect hundreds of informations issued during the past two years. Attorney Gernes took this action as counsel for John Leonard, on trial for robbery in the first degree. His claims are the feature of a plea in abatement.

CONSUMPTION WAS FEARED.

(Two Beautiful Women Restored to Health by Per-na)

MISS AMELIA WEYMER

A Beautiful Girl's Experience.

MISS AMELIA WEYMER, Appleton, writes: "Early last summer I contracted a cold which seemed to hang on to me and could not be shaken off. From the head it went to the throat and then affected my lungs. My mother felt very anxious and as we had used Per-na in the family before, she advised me to try it. I was somewhat very opposed, but was persuaded to try Per-na. Using it one day convinced me that it was no ordinary medicine, within a week I was much better and in two weeks I was well, and I felt much stronger and in much better health generally. I was perfectly satisfied with the results from the use of Per-na."—Miss Amelia Weymer.

The Cause of Consumption is Often a Common Cold.

Nine cases of consumption out of ten occur in this way: A person catches a cold. The cold is not properly cured and they quickly catch another one. This cold is dilly-dallied with by no treatment, or some treatment that is ineffectual, and the cold continues. Then they catch another cold and begin to cough. Then they take cough syrup, but they do no good. By and by they get tired of taking medicine and give up in despair. Their cold continues and their cough grows worse. Then they apply to a doctor, only to discover that they are in the first stages of consumption. At any time during the progress of the cold, from the first onset of the cold to the final settlement in the lungs, Per-na can be relied upon to check the progress of the cold. Sometimes after a diagnosis of consumption has been made by competent physicians Per-na has permanently cured. We have testimonials from many people who have been given up to die of consumption, who claim to have been cured by Per-na. We do not recommend Per-na as a consumption cure, but we do claim that it will prevent consumption if taken before the disease is thoroughly established. It is only the cases of incipient consumption that we feel confident that Per-na will cure.

Don't Neglect That Cold.

Get a Bottle of Per-na.

Take It According to Directions.

You Will be Surprised How Quickly Per-na Will Cure It.

MISS MINNIE PALMER

Miss Minnie Palmer, 75 Austin ave., Atlanta, Ga., writes:

"Last winter I caught a severe cold, which developed into catarrh of the head and throat. I tried sprays and other remedies, but nothing gave relief. Then I tried Per-na and after the use of four bottles I am entirely without a trace of catarrh, have a splendid appetite and am in fine health."—Minnie Palmer.

Congressman George Henry White of Tarboro, North Carolina, writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman, in regard to the merits of the great catarrh cure, Per-na:

"I am more than satisfied with Per-na, and find it to be an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."—George H. White.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Per-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Alcoholic Kidney Remedies Soon Put One Beyond Help.

Remember this—Kidney-Wort Tablets CANNOT contain alcohol.

Kidney Trouble kept MRS. HILLS from eating or sleeping.

Aug. 27, 1903, Mrs. Samuel Hills of Verdoy, Albany Co., N. Y., writes: "Some time ago I had severe pains and lameness through the region of my kidneys, and could neither eat or sleep well. I took about two bottles of Kidney-Wort Tablets, and am able to say that I can now sleep and eat well, and also, that my kidneys are in a hundred per cent. better condition than they have been for some time."

REBELS' RIFLES WOULDN'T FIRE

Therefore, Venezuelans Sue American Manufacturers for $81,000 for Humiliation They Suffered.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—If there is anything belonging to a South American revolutionist more out of place than a gun that will not shoot, it has not been heard of. For that and other reasons, Thomas E. Evans, agent for the leaders of the Venezuelan rebellion of two years ago, is suing to recover $81,000 from the M. Harlow Co., manufacturers of arms, arms and ammunition, alleging that on Feb. 28, 1901, he bought $31,900 worth of rifles, bayonets, cartridges, scabbards and belts.

The rifles were to be improved Remingtons of the best model and there were to be 500,000 cartridges. Evans alleges that the arms and ammunition were received in due time at Port of Spain, Trinidad, and distributed to the rebels.

When the latter encountered an opposing force, it is alleged, the rifles refused to perform their offices, for the cartridges were defective.

The rebels ran, and in the pursuit that followed many were slaughtered. So Mr. Evans demands $81,900 damages and the return of the balance of $31,900 paid on the ammunition which has never been delivered.

MISS WONG HEARS A FAD TALK.

Resplendent in Blue and Gold She Listens to Chicago Professor's Logic and Witticism.

The psychology of women's fashions and fads was wittily discussed by Prof. George E. Vincent, professor of sociology in the University of Chicago before the Wednesday afternoon session of the Chinese committee to the World's Fair, attended the dress lecture resplendent in a costume of blue and gold.

Mr. Vincent held that each fad had left artistic imprint in the homes and lives of women, and in physical and mental development of both men and women. He gave an amusing historical review of the variations of the feminine sleeve, which one year demands enough material for a skirt and the next tops at the elbow and has much above it.

THE GREATEST "WOMAN'S MEDICINE"

No. 5 West Lexington Street, BALTIMORE, MD., June 17, 1903.

Wine of Cardui is the only real reliable medicine for a sick woman. I tried several other medicines before I tried it but Wine of Cardui cured me. For four years I suffered with profuse menstruation which weakened my system and debilitated my strength until I became so weak that I was unable to work. I was in despair as I had spent a good deal of money uselessly until I tried Wine of Cardui and then I began to get better at once. My menses which had been frequent and profuse and painful soon became regular, painless and the flow natural. I therefore consider that it is all the medicine a sick woman needs. It is better than all the doctors and other medicines, its cost is trifling, and it cures in a remarkably short time.

Rachel Littleton

HUSBAND, DAUGHTER OF THE AMERICAN COUNSELLOR.

Wine of Cardui is a scientifically prepared medicine which does one thing and does that well. It regulates menstruation perfectly. There are no conflicting diagnoses to this treatment. The only diagnosis needed is that the menstruation is disordered and should be corrected. And following this principle Wine of Cardui has been the most successful female medicine that can be secured anywhere. In regulating the menstruation Wine of Cardui builds up and re-inforces the womanly organism. It drives out weakness and disease. With menstrual irregularities corrected, bearing down pains and ovarian troubles disappear. Headaches are banished, the nerves are strengthened and the sufferer begins to feel better at once as Miss Littleton describes.

You make no mistake in advising any woman to take Wine of Cardui. It is a medicine which almost every woman needs periodically to keep her in health. You could not make a better investment than to go to your druggist today and secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui and take it in your home. Wine of Cardui cured Miss Littleton when every other known remedy failed. Will you try it?

SPEND HALF CENTURY IN PRISON

Two Jurors Delayed Verdict in Otto Murder Case by Desire for Death Penalty.

AMOUNTS TO LIFE SENTENCE

Killing Was Result of Petty Quarrel of Slayer and Victim's Brother.

Fifty years in the penitentiary is the punishment placed against Theodore Otto for the murder of Frank Langley. The jury, after deliberating for 18 hours, returned this verdict at noon Thursday in Judge McDonald's division of the circuit court.

Two jurors held out for hanging, but finally gave over to the majority and assessed what practically amounts to a life sentence. Otto is 35 years old. Langley lived at 1013 Olive street. On the night of May 20 Otto shot him in front of the Century building, during a petty quarrel between Otto and a young brother of Langley, who was standing in front of the building. Otto shot him in the back of the head after the City Hospital. His body was sent to his mother in East Liverpool, O.

Otto's defense was that he killed Langley while protecting his own life. This was not substantiated by Detective Lee Killian, who arrested Otto after the shooting. The detective testified that when he asked Otto why he had killed the boy Otto replied:

"Well, he might have been one of those hold-up boys. I had some money and I didn't want to take any more. Then he might have been a friend of Donnelly, whom I shot."

Mrs. Vera Watkins of 2126 Carr street testified that she was on her way to the postoffice on the evening of the shooting. She saw two men standing in front of the Century building, heard a shot fired and saw one man run west up the alley toward Locust street. Mrs. Watkins ran to the side of the wounded man, tried to stop the flow of blood from his wound and went with him to the City Hospital.

Detective Killian was standing in front of a saloon on Locust street and heard the cries of the crowd. He captured Otto, who tried to get away, and after a struggle the detective, both men crashing through a plate glass window, Welsh Rickard, corroborated the detective's testimony.

CATARRH OF STOMACH

Trifling Expense of Relief and Cure Under Correct Treatment Given at Powell Medical Institute.

Mr. E. R. Sellington, Ferguson, Mo., says: "I have suffered from stomach trouble for two years. Everything I ate came out great pain and distress. I would belch gas after meals and was in constant agony until my stomach was empty. My head was light. I would get dizzy spells and suffered a great deal from indigestion. I tried a number of remedies and physicians, but got no relief until I went to the Powell Medical Institute. I found their treatment entirely different from anything I had ever taken. I began to improve almost from the start. Now my appetite is good, my pain is all gone, and I am able to eat a full meal and enjoy it."

PARSONS ON TRIAL FOR WIFE MURDER

Husband Declares He Mistook His Wife for Burglar and Shot Her.

THE COUPLE HAD QUARRELED

In Ante-Mortem Statements Mrs. Parsons Is Said to Have Accused the Man.

The trial of Samuel A. Parsons, charged with the murder of his wife, Mrs. Virginia Parsons, in their home at 819 Winstanley avenue, East St. Louis, in the early morning of July 21 last, was begun in the circuit court at Belleville Thursday morning.

Parson's defense is that he was awakened by the noise made by his wife in attempting to raise a window, and that he thought a burglar was trying to enter the house. He fired, and his wife's cry was his first intimation, he says, that she was not by his side.

He has engaged four attorneys to defend him. State's Attorney Farmer is assisted in the prosecution by Judge Lightfoot of Paducah, Ky., retained by the mother of Mrs. Parsons.

The entire morning was devoted to efforts to secure a jury, and it was not expected that the task would be finished before adjournment Thursday afternoon. The taking of testimony is expected to begin Friday.

Both sides have an extensive array of witnesses. Among those summoned to testify are neighbors of the Parsons and to whom she made her ante-mortem statement, saying her husband had shot her after a quarrel which had lasted for two or three hours. Among the witnesses are: Dr. R. X. McCracken, Dr. A. C. Housch, Dr. R. S. Staunton, the attending physicians; Miss Gertrude Golding, a friend of Mrs. Parsons, who was visiting at the Parsons' home at the time of the tragedy; Philip Cramer, Sarah Barry, Thomas E. Walsh, George Taylor, Samuel Lewis, J. J. Jones, Angelina Stephenson, Joseph J. Jensen, Patrolman Montgomery, M. A. Wright and Mrs. Wright, George Rayburn, Mrs. A. L. Lassiter and M. P. Stewart.

Is Said to Have Quarreled With Wife.

The testimony of Miss Golding is expected to be the most direct and most important. She has said that Parsons, when he came home about 10 o'clock on the evening of July 21, quarreled with her before she had purchased some rugs from an installment house. The quarrel grew violent, and Miss Golding fled to her room, back of the bedroom in which were the Parsons and their sleeping 4-year-old daughter, Beatrice.

This bedroom was immediately back of the room which opened upon the front porch, and which was used as a reception hall. On either side of the room, and in front of a window, each fitted with a screen.

Miss Golding says that the quarrel continued through the night, and that she heard Parsons cry out in pain, and that she heard him say that he was dying, and early in the morning asked that Beatrice be brought to her. She issued the child and asked Miss Golding to give her to Mrs. Parsons' mother, who lives in Paducah, Ky., if she would take her, and if not to send her to Mrs. Parsons' sister at Mount Pleasant, Tex. In a few moments she was dead.

DESK RIFLED BY JEALOUS WOMAN

Letters Acknowledged by Unwilling
Witness Prevent Their Writer
From Getting a Divorce.

SOLICITOUS ABOUT HIS HAIR

"Don't Do as I Did," Her Warning
in Regard to Matrimonial Mistakes.

A wife's letters, long since supposed to have been consigned to the waste basket, have unexpectedly appeared in a divorce suit, causing chagrin and humiliation, as well as loss of the suit.

This happened in the hearing of the Havlin vs. Havlin bills before Judge Kinsley in the circuit court. Mrs. Sue G. Havlin was contending that her husband, John Havlin, had made her condition intolerable by failure to provide a bed for her to sleep in. Mr. Havlin was pressing a cross bill, naming Edgar S. Waer.

Mrs. Havlin's case progressed smoothly until letters she had written in August, 1929, were offered in evidence. The letters fell like a bomb. They put an entirely different face on the points at issue. The hearing came to a close abruptly.

"I would not have granted Mrs. Havlin a divorce even if the defendant had defaulted," exclaimed Judge Kinsley the moment the attorneys had rested the cases of their clients. "And in view of the letters introduced I dismiss her petition. I am not clear on a legal point in the cross-bill of Mr. Havlin, and will reserve decision until next Monday."

The sensation caused by the unexpected introduction and reading aloud of the letters to Waer, the receipt of which he acknowledged on the witness stand, was second in dramatic effect to the account of their coming into the possession of Havlin.

In a burst of jealousy they were removed two years ago from the desk of Waer by

HER FOND LETTERS TO YOUNG MAN TAKEN TO COURT BY JEALOUS WOMAN

MRS. SUE STEWART HAVLIN.

Miss Agnes Diester, who considered herself entitled to read his correspondence. Before her anger cooled they were shown to Havlin, who made them the basis for his divorce suit.

When asked by Judge Kinsley why she had taken the letters, Miss Diester could not explain. She did not even hide behind a "because." She admitted, however, the part she played in their being brought to light. The letters follow.

Edgar S. Waer, Room 521 Holland Building—My Friend: I am coming downtown tomorrow, Tuesday, and would like to see you, if you care.

Just as soon as my house is in order I shall point you something real pretty for your room.

I want you to count me a friend. I shan't come between you and your sweetheart. I am not mean enough for that. I only want to be your friend. We need true friends in this drama of life and it makes life worth living to be assured we have one at least who will always be a true, good friend.

You seemed rather sad last time I saw

you. Now, my friend, don't let me dishearten you. You don't know how much luck and happiness the future holds for you, so be brave. I will do anything in my power to help you. I only trust this girl is worthy of you. You know the true value of influence of the love of a good man. I am always your friend, MRS. H.

Aug. 27, 1929.

"Don't Have Your Hair Cut Again."

My Friend: Well! You're a daisy and if you were not so nice I would be angry with you. I waited for you as long as I dared.

I don't like to be seen coming out of that building so late. I was disappointed. I wanted to have a talk with you. But never mind, we'll have a nice long talk some time in the near future, won't we?

Now, my dear, I must have that umbrella, so bring it down Friday afternoon. No one is home but me. If it rains Stewart will certainly ask for it, so please bring it to me, won't you? Then I will return the favor as soon as possible.

I hope you are feeling better, and don't forget to write me. Give my love to your mother. I am always your friend, MRS. H.

Aug. 27, 1929.

The attorneys for Mr. Havlin introduced the letters to the court, and Judge Kinsley produced evidence to sustain their contention, brought forth the two blue letters that for many months have been in the possession of Miss Diester.

Trouble Came

After Twenty Years.

The Havlins were married in Cincinnati in 1922. He is now 33. His wife is two years his junior. Mr. Waer is 28.

Mrs. Havlin was a daughter of H. C.

Stewart, a wealthy soap manufacturer.

Her father and her brother, Dr. Thomas

Stewart, attended the trial.

Mr. and Mrs. Havlin moved to St. Louis in 1928, after 15 years of married life, and took a home at 478 Vernon avenue.

Mr. Havlin embarked in the insurance business.

Mrs. Havlin declared in her bill for divorce that her husband made her sleep with the servants because of a scarcity of beds.

In rebuttal Havlin produced bills amounting to $120.50 to show that his wife had open accounts and could have bought a bed.

"Two sons are in the East, one in a law office, the other attending a military academy, and I am a single mother."

At the conclusion of the hearing, Miss

Diester, who had testified as a witness for Havlin, further complicated matters by leaving the courthouse arm in arm with

Waer.

They met in the corridors after the ad-judgment of court and spent two hours in earnest conversation. At times both would be convulsed with laughter, and again Mrs.

Diester would snatch her handkerchief vigorously to her eyes. Gestures and words were constant. As evening approached they hurried away together.

STARVING IN THE MOUNTAIN WILDS

Llewelyn Roberts Lost in the Forests of Montana While Hunting.

MISSOULA, Mont., Nov. 12.—Llewelyn Roberts, brother of Wynne Roberts, promi- nently identified with a well known book concern, is wandering through the moun- tains in the Owl creek country, starving and possibly dying of exposure and ex- haustion. Many already believe him dead. W. H. Harian, son of W. B. Harian, a prominent resident of Comstock, was reached by a search- ing party in a dying condition from ex- haustion on the banks of Horse creek, along which he had tracked his friend for two days and nights in a vain effort to find him. HELD FOR THEFT OF MILK.

Edward Lohman and Frederick Wede- kamp Arrested While Try- ing to Sell It.

Edward Lohman, 33 years old, of 313 North Nineteenth street, and Frederick Wedekamp, 40 years old, of 255 Carr street, employees of the Western Dairy Co., 123 Franklin avenue, were arrested while sell- ing two cans of milk to George Bechtel, 34 years old, proprietor of a milk depot at 1307 Biddle street, early Thursday morn- ing. Bechtel was arrested later on the charge of receiving stolen goods. The ap- prehensions were made at the request of Pres- ident Milton Peters of the dairy company, who says that the thieves have been prac- ticed for several weeks past.

OPERA GLASSES IN HER STOCKING

Girl Ran With Them and Pursuer Fainted—Policeman Cap- tured Her.

Jennie Foster, 17, giving her address as 269 Shenadoan avenue, St. Louis, is un- der arrest in Clayton on the charge of stealing a pair of opera glasses from Mrs. T. H. Rogers of Clayton, to whom she had applied for car fare to return to St. Louis. Mrs. Rogers went upstairs to get the change, and the girl put the opera glasses in her stocking and ran. Mrs. Rogers ran after her, but fell in a faint. Constable Lemm took up the chase, and the girl was caught.

THE KAISER MUST TALK IN WHISPERS

Doctors Have Trouble in Keeping Him From Overtaxing His Vocal Organs.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—The greatest difficulty of Emperor William's physicians is to keep him from overtaxing his voice. They have ruled that he must only whisper a little, and while he is not forbidden of their com- mands he whispers a good deal and occa- sionally utters an exclamation. State busi- ness is piling up. Various matters in which the Emperor is personally interested have developed, and he is unable to dis- cuss them, but he listens to reports, writes questions, objections or his own views, though the pencil runs too slowly and he breaks out occasionally with whispered re- marks, pitched near the edge of the can- vey line. No special harm has been done yet, but as he is getting well past his im- petuence increases.

"Rules Is Rules, but—"

The man who smokes on the front platform of a street car may make serious trouble for the motorman, who is liable to suspension and even dismissal for allowing it. But most motormen, through a good-natured wish to see others enjoy themselves, permit the smoking and take the risk.

As a car was passing the powerhouse on Delmar avenue the other day a man on the front platform was puffing at a cigar.

"No smoking in front of the station," said the motorman, appealingly. The passenger obeyed. A block further up the conductor whispered: "You can go ahead with your smoke now."

"I won't if it's going to get you into any trouble," said the passenger.

"Well, you know," replied the man in blue, "rules is rules and this here's almost a state's prison affair; but I'll take the risk. Smoke up."

Neither New Nor Old

It is related of Frank R. Stockton that while on a visit to Boston he was invited to address the members of a well-known woman's club. The member who conveyed the invitation was a most dignified and stately matron. With just a suspicion of asperity in her tone she suggested to the humorist that he might address the club on any subject which seemed to him appropriate, but that she would call his attention to the fact that this was "not a club of new women," with the emphasis on "new." With a deferential bow the humorist replied:

"Ah, madam! I am convinced of that! At the same time, however, you would not have me call you a club of old women, would you?"

DOUBLE-QUICK.

"Yes, the Tie-Rant gave a production of Hamlet in Gory Gulch."

"Did the ghost walk?"

"No, it ran. Some one started shooting."

The Man in the Street

WANTED—A DANIEL.

Soothsayers and interpreters of signs and portents have the opportunity of their lives now, in the matter of translating the strange writing that appeared in purple fire on the door of August Kleinsorge. The mystic letters as recorded by Mr. Kleinsorge were "I.L. III." and he is convinced that they appeared through some supernatural agency. He is considerably bothered about remembering the story of Belshazzar and "Mene, Mene Tekel Upharsin."

Simply a Request.

But Mr. Kleinsorge should not worry; he is not a wicked and bibulous king, but a quiet and upright farmer, and has done nothing to be punished for. Still he is looking for a Daniel to read for him the graphic riddle.

Let us see what we can make of the matter. We know that supernatural agencies are fond of dealing in cryptograms and symbols. They do not like to write in plain English—perhaps they don't understand the language. And cryptograms like the illustrated rebuses in the papers can be worked out in any language. Take the present writing, for example. It appeared in purple fire. Purple is the emblem of royalty, and also of perfection and death. The spook that wrote that message was evidently once a scion of royalty, one of the earthly perfect, but now gone to his long account. That the letters were in fire indicates that the agency is having a hot time somewhere. And this also has a bearing on the meaning of the letters themselves. The letters I.L. are followed by a period. These letters undoubtedly abbreviate some thought; let us say I languish, or I long, which, considering the fire, seems plausible enough. The period expresses a period of time. The longest pause in punctuation. Now hold on to that.

Next we must consider the three I's. They are placed together like Roman numerals, and doubtless express the number three—this being the ancient manner of keeping tally on drinks consumed. Now let us place our cryptogram together. It assumes the form of a request rather than a warning, and reads: "I languish—a long time between drinks."

If Mr. Kleinsorge would place a few bottles outside his door the spirits would certainly disappear. No charge for this advice.

What quiet joys the rural soul delights, The undimmed pageantry of gleaming stars, The lustrous moon, the hills and trees and such— But we've the pageantry of trolley cars. And we have stars, as well, that nightly show Where we may see them for two plunks or so.

Passing from soul-food to more earthly things, The table joys that rural dwellers boast; Fresh eggs and chickens we admit are fine, But never farmer had a tender roast. And as for milk, the country kind I've tried, But missed the flavor of formaldehyde.

We have no aisles of pines, no new mown hay, No lowing kine, nor yet the song of birds; But in the aisles of a department store We see more, and we hear the song of words. So, on the whole, in town we think we'll stay, Especially, since we can't get away.

THE POST-DISPATCH DAILY STORY

After a Decade

The Man and Woman Had Been Lovers. With Little Knowledge of Life they Quarreled Over Their Own Opinions and Parted. Ten Years Later They Met. Nothing in the World Had Changed, but Their Points of View.

BY H. S. CAMPBELL.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.) In a lonely country road in the Catskills the Woman in Gray met the Man in Black. It had been ten years since they parted, and they looked at each other with eager curiosity. The Man was tall, with a well-built face and a sprinkle of gray in his hair; the Woman was a woman of 30, with an erect rounded figure, steady, kindly gray eyes beneath a prominent forehead, and a decided chin. They were notable faces, but had their faults. The Man's nose curved like a beak, an imperious curve; the Woman's jaw set too solidly. They looked their ages to the full.

The Man spoke first: "It would be polite to say that the years have left no trace, but it would not be true. You are handsomer and stronger, but much changed."

The Woman said: "A decade cannot pass and its end find us the same. You were young when I knew you; it is middle life with you now; you have taken your place in the world and I have heard of you often. The public prints have told me much, of course. I have rejoiced in your success for—for old sake's sake."

"And you," the Man said, "went out of my life utterly. Hidden in some nook the suns and moons have gone over you. I looked for you in Europe. I can't say, either, that I looked for you; rather I expected to see you. Certainly I did not expect to find you here."

"The life has been quiet," the Woman said, "but unfruitful. We grow constantly either upward or downward. I hope that I have grown upward; I have worked hard to that end."

"You have grown upward," the Man said. "It shows in you. You are bigger and broader-mentally. I mean—though you were never little."

"And I was honest," the Woman said. "Yes, you were honest."

"I wanted to be honest and fair. I believe that it was fair to you, but I have sometimes thought—I have thought sometimes that I was not fair to myself."

The Man's face had grown a shade whiter and he moved one step toward her. "It was my fault—mostly," he said. "I think that any decent person would say that I was generally in the wrong. Yet that was not through intention; it was through inability to see the right. I have paid for it a thousandfold."

Something in his voice caused her to look up quickly, and then she looked down. It was a remembered note that moved her. "You have been much in the world," she said.

"Yes, I have been much in the world; have had my successes and my failures; the chief joy I have got out of it has been the work."

"Yes," the Woman said, "we hid our hurts and saved them according to our natures. Being male, you labored and fought, suffered, endured and achieved; being female, I stole away to loneliness and nursed my grief because it was my dearest friend. I felt that I could not part with it. I should have been lost without it. But it has grown duller with time, and now I can say that it has gone from me. Such work as I have done has been for others."

The Man said: "Though the grief is gone from us both, or at least the active sting of it, I think that there are many things we have missed. Our lives have been only half lives. You have never married?"

"No; and you?"

"Not I; I could find no complement to me. I did not seek any. Other women seemed bare and shallow, or harsh and unfitted. It was the curse of my love that it set you so far above them that never afterward could I raise one of them to half your height. When I went from you it was to an unshared home and the knowledge that never for me should children sing."

The Woman said gently, and without lifting her eyes: "I have felt it, curse."

A bunch of scarlet bell blossoms trailed from a rock by the roadway, and the man broke the cluster and laid it lightly upon her black hair.

"You used to wear them so," he said, half tenderly, half in excuse.

"Yes," she answered, "but I have worn no flowers since. They did not seem made for me some way."

"And yet you were fond of them."

"I love them still, but they speak of bloom and joy, of sweetness and youth, and those things went from me with the others."

The Man laid his hand on her shoulder and stood for a moment, thinking deeply. The pose was one of command, though unconscious. Then he asked briefly: "Was it best?"

"I do not know," the Woman replied, in a troubled voice. "I have thought much about it, but I do not know. There is so much to be said. You loved me; I loved you dearly; we had each other and were alone in all the world; it seemed good of God to bring us together. Yet as we became common to one another the bloom of the love was rubbed off; and after the bloom was gone it seemed only half a love and half an anger.

Her lips curved and dropped in a pathetic smile. "We quarreled so," she added.

"Ay, I remember! And about what did we quarrel?"

"Oh," with a wide, outward sweep of the hands, "about everything."

"You were jealous?"

"Yes."

"I was jealous?"

"Yes."

"That seems queer. Neither of us had any special religion that I can remember."

"We hadn't, but we quarreled hotly."

The Man was once more silent in reflection. Then he said, slowly and as a matter of course:

"What fools we were!"

The Woman looked up brightly, and she did not seem to feel the weight of the hand upon her shoulder. An almost girlish blush and bloom had come into her face and she smiled soberly.

"Do you think so?" she asked. "I have often thought so."

The Man stood with bent head, his eyes fastened on the spray of scarlet flowers which lay richly upon the black hair.

"I wonder if it is too late," said, half

TWENTY-FOUR-HOUR CLOCK.

"What time does the next train leave?" inquired a St. Louis woman lately at a tiny Canadian town.

"Fourteen-fifteen," was the surprising answer.

"What?" exclaimed the woman, thinking she had not heard correctly.

"Fourteen-fifteen—quarter past 14," repeated the railway official.

"Oh," said the St. Louis woman, with dawning comprehension, "so that is the way you tell time down here?"

"And we sat down to dinner at 12:30," she said, in giving a lively recollection of her adventures. "I really felt uncanny till I got back to our dear, inconvenient 'a. m.' and 'p. m.' again."

WHY DOES CHICKEN CROSS THE ROAD? HOT TIME MINSTER-RELS WILL ANSWER

Club House Interior Will Be Represented in Scenic Setting of Entertainment at Odeon—All Boxes Sold for the Opening Night.

All the boxes have been sold for the opening performance of the Hot Time Minstrels at the Odeon tomorrow (Friday) night, an event for which St. Louis society turns out en masse.
The box-holders include Mayor Rolla Wells, Gov. E. O. Stanard, W. J. Kemp, William Matfitt, George P. Doane, Jr., Walter Taylor, Sam Plant, Henry Koehler, Jr., Edward A. Faust, Julius Koehler, Fred Nolke, Everett Brooks, C. E. Curby, C. S. McKinney, T. E. Price, George T. Murphy, Jr., Thomas F. Haley, Jr., Walter Boogher, Edward F. Goltra, W. C. Hager, George W. Taylor, Frank Fauntleroy, Thomas A. Cleave and the Elks Lodge.
The entertainment will follow the general lines of those given by the Hot Times in past years, except that the setting for the minstrel portion of the program will be an exquisitely furnished interior of a fashionable club, instead of the familiar banquet scene.
The end men—Messrs. Pittman, Hickey, Dauer, Davidson and Maguire will again appear as negro waiters. Joseph A. Buse will fill the role of president of the club, and will call upon the waiters for "coon" songs and dances and upon Messrs. Niedringhaus, Martin, Stanley, Lawrence and Goddard for solos. A finely-drilled chorus of 20 voices will sing the refrain to each vocal number.
Lackland as Little Susie.
H. V. Neppin will direct the orchestra and Arthur Lieber will be accompanist for some of the solos.
In the introductory portion of the program Messrs. Pittman and Hickey will appear in a negro sketch entitled "Picket Duty," and George Maguire will be heard in a monologue.
There will also be selections by the Hot Time Minstrels' triple quartet, comprising Messrs. William K. Stanard, Gunnar Carlander, Dumont Jones, Lucien Jones, William W. Frosser, John R. Harkins, John B. Brown, James G. Stanley, Charles Roe, T. W. Ross, Eugene F. Kehoe and J. G. Lee.
A specialty will be introduced by Messrs. Lackland and Kehoe in which the former will appear as a baby girl and the latter as his negro "mammy."
The entertainment will be repeated Saturday afternoon and evening. There has been a good sale for all the performances, the house being almost sold out for the opening night.

WANTS ARMED MEN AT DENVER POLLS

League for Honest Elections Favors Placing Them There to Protect Ballots.

DENVER, Nov. 12.—Citizens of Denver have been advised to use force at the charter election Dec. 10 next to purify the ballot.
At a public meeting called by the League for Honest Elections, facts and figures were presented showing that, at recent elections in this city, thousands of illegal votes have been counted. Speakers openly charged that the president of the fire and police board, the chief of police and officers in that department, the majority of the city council who approved the appointment of dishonest election judges and district attorneys who failed to prosecute election thieves were the parties responsible for the present deplorable state of affairs.
Attorney Ralph Talbot declared in favor of having 100 men, armed with rifles, go to the precincts in the downtown wards, where crime on election days is rampant, ready to shoot the bloods for an illegal vote at the next election, and his suggestion was warmly seconded by Rev. Henry W. Pinkham.
Seven hundred men and women cheered for several seconds the appeal for an armed force to fight, if need be, for an honest election.

LIEUTENANT'S BOOK CAUSES DISMISSAL

Deposed Officer Must Also Fight His Former Associates Whom He Caricatured.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—The military court at Metz today concluded the trial of Lieut. Blisen, the author of the book entitled "A Little Garrison," and sentenced the lieutenant to six months in prison and to dismissal from the army.
One month of the time the officer already has spent in prison was allowed to be deducted from the sentence. The novel was ordered to be destroyed.
The decision of the court was based on the fact that in his novel, Lieut. Blisen insulted his superior officers and drew such a picture of events in Forbach, Alsace-Lorraine, that persons living in that place were compromised. The court further says the lieutenant disobeyed the order of Emperor William prohibiting an officer to publish a pamphlet without the permission of his military superiors.
In the defendant's favor it was argued that "A Little Garrison" is a book and not a pamphlet, and that it contained much truth concerning the narrow condition existing in Alsace-Lorraine, and the frequent injustice of superior officers to their inferiors and that it reflects on duelling.
Several officers to which Lieut. Blisen belonged have agreed among themselves to challenge him to duels.
The Tugblatt says Capt. Bandel, who testified in Blisen's favor, has been suspended. Lieut. Blisen will endeavor to have the case reopened.
